Häcker Kitchens Reveals the Next Wave of Kitchen Innovations at Its 2026 House Fair

(Miami, FL) October 2026.
The future of kitchen design is taking shape with Häcker Kitchens at the helm. The German manufacturer of modern kitchen cabinetry and furnishings welcomed design professionals from around the world to its headquarters in Rödinghausen, Germany for its annual House Fair, held September 19 – 25, 2026. A premier destination for discovering emerging trends and innovative kitchen solutions, the week-long exhibition offered an exclusive look at the products poised to forge residential interiors in the year ahead.

Under the theme “Inspired by Simplicity,” Häcker Kitchens displayed a completely reimagined showroom featuring more than 30 distinctive kitchen and living environments. The immersive exhibition brought together the company’s latest advancements across the concept130 and systemat lines, showcasing an expansive selection of new cabinet fronts, expressive finishes, authentic materials and intelligent storage solutions.

As the kitchen continues to evolve beyond its traditional role and into a central reflection of an entire home, Häcker Kitchens is redefining the relationship between aesthetics and functionality. From saturated hues and tactile surfaces to concealed storage and custom configurations, the following trends emerged as influences of kitchen design:

Color Confidence

The era of the all-white kitchen is giving way to personality-driven palettes that bring depth and individuality to the home. Häcker Kitchens welcomed three new standard colors, Caramel, Gentian Blue and Oxide Red, alongside established favorites Eucalyptus and Emerald Green. These shades feed the growing appetite designers and homeowners have for color. Further expanding creative possibilities, Häcker's premium systemat collection now offers approximately 4,000 color options, allowing for nearly limitless personalization.

Materiality Takes Center Stage

As homeowners gravitate toward authentic, nature-inspired interiors, tactile surfaces are bringing dimension to kitchen design. Pronounced wood grains, textured stone and natural finishes transform cabinetry into architectural statements that engage the senses. Responding to this movement, Häcker Kitchens introduced the AV 6070 Blackwood front, featuring elegantly grained real wood veneer, alongside the AV 7030-GL Gold Shine-star, an authentic stone veneer distinguished by shimmering gold accents and rich natural texture. These material innovations celebrate organic beauty while bringing depth, warmth and sophistication to contemporary spaces.

Refined Tradition

A renewed appreciation for craftsmanship and heritage is inspiring a modern interpretation of traditional kitchen design. Classic architectural details are being reimagined through contemporary proportions, refined finishes and unexpected material combinations. Häcker Kitchens embraced this evolution with new Viennese wickerwork textures, beveled frames and metallic lacquer finishes that further bridge the gap between timeless character and modern sophistication.

The Art of Concealment

Streamlined surfaces and discreet storage are redefining modern luxury as kitchens become increasingly integrated with living and entertaining spaces. At the House Fair, Häcker Kitchens showcased its innovative Pocket Door systems, available across both concept130 and systemat. Designed as standalone storage and countertop cabinetry, the sliding fronts disappear into concealed side pockets, providing effortless access to storage while preserving clean, uninterrupted sightlines. This thoughtful innovation reflects the growing demand for kitchens that balance sophisticated aesthetics with everyday functionality.

Heritage Inspires the Future

Some of the most forward-thinking innovations are rooted in heritage and tradition. Celebrating the 100th anniversary of the iconic Frankfurt Kitchen, designed by Margarete Schütte-Lihotzky in 1926, Häcker Kitchens introduced its Limited Edition 1926, a contemporary tribute to purposeful design. Showcased in Panorama Blue, the kitchen reinterprets the original fitted kitchen’s emphasis on efficiency and ergonomics with an integrated pull-out table, built-in step ladder and floor-to-ceiling storage. Available in seven historically inspired colors, the special edition demonstrates how timeless design principles continue to influence the kitchens of tomorrow.
